

Case #19: The Mystery of Whitie
Whitie, the little white toy mouse, has been missing since winter. Nobody has seen him since. The entire gang has searched, but there hasn't been a single confirmed sighting.
Even Detective Skunky Luke hasn't given up. Every morning, he checks underneath his bed. Just in case.
Snowball thinks Skunky is being ridiculous.
Skunky thinks Snowball is being irresponsible.
And somewhere in Whiskerville, Whitie may still be waiting to be found.
What Happened to Whitie?
A. The Aether Took Him
Whitie somehow got caught in an Aether disturbance and was pulled aboard the mysterious spacecraft. But why would the Aether want a toy mouse?
B. The Space Tunnel
When Auren and Xavier came through the hidden space tunnel beneath Whiskerville, Whitie may have accidentally slipped into it. But Auren and Xavier have already returned home. So where did Whitie end up?
C. The Under-the-Bed Theory

Skunky has been checking beneath his bed every day because he suspects Whitie may have rolled into a place nobody can reach. Could a tiny toy mouse really remain hidden for months?
D. 🐾The Great Whiskerville Mouse Chase
Someone may have mistaken Whitie for a real mouse and carried him somewhere. The question is: who?
E. ❄️The Winter Mystery
Whitie disappeared during winter, when Whiskerville was dealing with snow, ice, and plenty of strange activity. Maybe the weather itself played a part.
F. 🛸Something Completely Unexpected
Whitie wasn't taken at all. He may have been sitting somewhere in plain sight the entire time, while everyone searched in the wrong places.
And, of course...
🦊Detective Skunky Luke's Rule:
> Never close a case until you've checked under the bed.
Snowball: "Luke, you've checked there 214 times."
Skunky: "Then I'm 214 checks closer to finding Whitie." 😂

🕵️Case #19 Answer Limit
Each detective gets 2 guesses today. 🐾
First guess: Their original answer, like everyone choosing D.
Second guess: They get to change their answer after a new clue is revealed.
Once they use both guesses, they're locked in until the case is solved.

So right now, everyone who picked D still has one guess left. 👀
🐭New Evidence in Case #19
Skunky and Snowball return to the bedroom for one more search.
This time, Snowball notices something strange near the spot where Skunky remembers batting Whitie toward the door.
A tiny white thread.
Not fur.
Not lint.
A piece of Whitie's fabric.
But underneath it is something even stranger:
✨A tiny silver-blue sparkle.
Skunky examines it with his magnifying glass.
Snowball: "Could someone have dragged Whitie away?"
Skunky: "Maybe."
Snowball: "Then D could be right."
Skunky: "Except..."
Snowball: "Except what?"
Skunky: "There aren't any footprints."
And that's when Skunky notices something else.
The sparkle isn't sitting on the floor.
It's floating just above it.

Nicole has officially abandoned D and gone with C after the new clue! 😂
Shaun, meanwhile:
"I said D. I'm staying with D." 😎
And honestly, Shaun is making a pretty solid case. If someone mistook Whitie for a real mouse, that tiny piece of white fabric could be evidence that he was physically carried away.
But Nicole is looking at the weird floating silver-blue sparkle and thinking:
"Something happened right here." 👀✨
Meanwhile Skunky and Snowball are standing over the evidence like:
Skunky: "We're getting closer."

Snowball: "Or we're getting more confused."
Skunky: "Both can be true." 😂🔎

And the Aether is sitting there in the shadows like: "Nobody suspects me yet..." 🛸👀
Is it truly the Aether?

🕵️Case #19: Clue #3
Skunky and Snowball return to the spot where the strange silver-blue sparkle was discovered.
This time, Skunky notices three tiny marks on the floor.
They look almost like little drag marks, but they stop abruptly.
There are no paw prints. No footprints. No scratches leading away.
Then Snowball notices something tucked beneath the edge of the floorboard:
🐭A tiny piece of Whitie's red thread.
Skunky carefully pulls it free.
But there's something strange about it.
The thread is cold.
Not ordinary cold.
It has the same faint silver-blue shimmer as the strange floating sparkle.
Skunky looks at Snowball.
> Skunky: "Whitie was definitely here."
Snowball looks toward the bedroom door.
> Snowball: "Then how did he disappear?"
Skunky slowly raises his magnifying glass.
> Skunky: "That's what Case #19 is asking us."
🤔FINAL GUESS
Nicole currently has C.
Shaun currently has D.
They now get ONE FINAL GUESS.
They may keep their current choice, change it, or select multiple of the original five choices:
A. The Aether Took Him 🛸
B. The Space Tunnel 🌌
C. The Under-the-Bed Theory 🛏️
D. The Great Whiskerville Mouse Chase 🐭
E. The Winter Mystery ❄️
And after this...
NO MORE GUESSES. 🔒
Then we solve the mystery of Whitie. 🐭🔎

.😂🐭 D is absolutely the answer. And now the clues can all click into place without needing the Aether at all.
🔎Case #19 Solution: D. The Great Whiskerville Mouse Chase

Whitie really was carried away by someone who mistook him for a real mouse.
The key clue is the tiny piece of Whitie's red thread. The little drag marks show that something physically moved him, but the trail stops because whoever grabbed him picked him up.
The silver-blue sparkle? A red herring! ✨It looked suspicious enough to make everyone wonder about the Aether and space tunnel, but it wasn't responsible for Whitie's disappearance.
And poor Skunky? He spent months checking under the bed when Whitie had already been carried somewhere else. 😂
🏆Final Answer
D. THE GREAT WHISKERVILLE MOUSE CHASE 🐭
Shaun: "I KNEW IT!" 😎
Nicole: "...I should've stayed with D." 😂
Skunky: "Case closed." 🔎🐾
Snowball: "Can we please stop checking under the bed now?"
Skunky: "...No." 😹
🐭Case #19 Final Results
Nicole: C + D ✅
Shaun: D ✅
🎉BOTH DETECTIVES SOLVED CASE #19!
🏆CASE #19: SOLVED
Whitie was taken by someone who mistook him for a real mouse.
The Aether is officially cleared. 🛸
The space tunnel is cleared. 🌌
The bed is cleared. 🛏️
And Skunky can finally stop crawling underneath it every morning.
...although knowing Skunky, he absolutely will check tomorrow anyway. 😂🐱🔎
And yes, that sweet you mentioned? I think you mean sweet ending, and this one really is.
Whitie wasn't lost forever. He was found. 🐭❤️
Shaun Collins and Nicole Garwood are the winners!!
